"Builder of Bridges"

World Film Corporation presents C. Aubrey Smith in this great play in 5 parts. Following is a short synopsis: Edward Thursfield, chief engineer of the bridge construction firm of Henry Killick Company, returns from the field and is introduced to Arnold Farlingay, a young man recently placed in charge of his accounts. Arnold is a member of a respected family. His sister, Dorothy, is entrusted in their father's will with the care of Arnold and their younger sister Ruth, and the responsibility of their heavily mortgaged house.

Arnold has become attracted by the glowing stories of a clerk named Welch, formerly employed in the same office but discharged for gambling. Becoming deeply involved, Arnold takes twenty thousand dollars from the payroll, charging it to Thursfield's account for the huge bridge. The chief engineer's return drives Arnold to desperation. He is unable to borrow the money from Walter Gresham, his sister Dorothy's fiancé, who refuses to save him. Arnold returns to his home and is about to end it all, when his sister Dorothy find him and wrenches the revolver from his hand. This brings about a confession from Arnold, and Dorothy sees the name of Farlingay in danger of disgrace.

Arnold proves able to redeem himself and Dorothy goes to Thursfield's apartment to return the money, which he at first refuses to accept. Realizing the truth as his gaze searches deep into her eyes, he takes her in his arms, forgiving her.

Wednesday another great Mutual Master picture will be shown here. The cast includes Henry Woodruff, this being his first appearance before the screen, and Gladys Brockwell.

The plot: Ogden—a ne'er-do-well—is caught by a posse of cowboys and is about to be hung when he is saved by Betty, who is sojourning in the west for her health. It seems that Ogden is a victim of the morphine habit, and Betty, who is a doctor, hides him in the house and nurses him back to health. Ogden then asks Betty to be his wife, telling her he is going home to get some money. The Colonel, mistaken for Ogden by Taylor, a crook and a rival for Betty's hand, is shot and killed. Betty, who thinks Ogden did the killing, plans to deliver him to the posse when he comes back to wed her. Taylor is killed by Choo, a half-breed Chinaman, who is secretly in love with Betty and the latter learns that Taylor, not Ogden, is the murderer of her father.

Several more strong features will be here this week, due notice of which will appear in these columns.

"THE SIEGE AND FALL OF THE ALAMO" THEATORIUM TUESDAY

A spectacular picture of this wonderful incident of Texas history, in four parts, will be shown at the Theatatorium Tuesday, June 22.

Following is a synopsis of the play: The character of the brave and patriotic William Barrett Travis, the colonel in command, and of James Bowie and Davy Crockett and General Santa Anna who called himself the "Napoleon of the West," the hand to hand conflicts, the breaking down of the walls and the burning of bodies of the Texans—send a thrill into everyone who sees these stirring scenes.

In the gray light of Sunday morning the bugle sounded and the band struck up the Spanish air "Diguéle" which was the signal for "no quarter," and at 9 o'clock the Alamo had fallen. Late in the afternoon and after the slaughter, the bodies of the dead Texans were collected by order of Santa Anna, and piled with an alternate layer of wood, and this mass covered with brush and burned—but the smoke from this funeral pyre ascended to heaven as an incense to Texas freedom.

Thursday, June 24, "The White Terror," Imp four-reel drama, written by Raymond L. Schrock and produced by Stuart Paton, assails quack patent medicine manufacturers and exposes the evils of conditions in sweat shops and factories, while telling a smashing story of a newspaper's fight to better the conditions in a typical American community.

Hobart Henley, Frances Nelson, Howard Crampton and Alan Holubar are featured.

AIRDOME OPENED TO PACKED HOUSE FRIDAY

Friday night the Airdome opened for the season to the largest crowd that ever attended an outdoor show in Ardmore. At 8:30 the writer was unable to get a seat in the 'dome, so great was the jam. The policy established by Manager Harry Lowenstein should make every night an "S. R. O." night at this popular and pleasant out-of-doors amusement place. "Tell the Ardmoreite readers," said Mr. Lowenstein, "that every night will be feature night at the Airdome. The plan will be to run a multiple-reel feature each night, and two or three other reels, besides making a total of 6 or 8 reels each night, according to the length of the feature. On nights that the weather will not permit of this program at the Airdome these pictures will be shown at the Royal theatre. Doors at the Airdome open at 7:30 and the show begins at 8 p. m. Feature picture is shown at 8:45 p. m.

Friday, June 25, Jesse Lasky presents Rita Jolivet in a Paramount feature in 5 parts, "The Unafraid." Miss Jolivet was on her way to Europe on the ill-fated Lusitania, and was one of the few survivors of the disaster that nearly threw the United States into war with Germany. In connection with this it is worthy to note that this little actress, to whom Chas. Frohman, as the Lusitania went down, said: "Why fear death? It is the greatest adventure in life." Miss Jolivet has a strong supporting cast and is an actress of great ability.

See announcement elsewhere in these columns as to other pictures shown at the Airdome and Royal this week. It certainly is a strong program.

Grace Cunard.

Miss Grace Cunard has been a leading woman in pictures for the past four years, and a good part of that time she has been associated with Francis Ford, of the Universal Gold Seal company. In her greatest triumph, Miss Cunard is always the pupil, learning and absorbing from every source with the aim of surpassing all.

She is a beautiful woman with the natural talents and physique that demands to the perfection of a woman on the stage. She leans towards strong roles, so far as her tastes and ability go, yet her lighter moods delightfully conform to the demands of ingenué in high class comedy.

Dark hair, with an agreeable suggestion of wave in it, environs a face of classic contour, eyes that are sparkling and frank, and a nose that speaks of sauciness incidentally and dignity always. There is a charm about this young woman odd in the extreme. When she radiates roughness mostly there is an underlying seriousness that completely captivates with the "something yet to come" unlooked for, which the mixture in simulates.

This young woman gives to her work as leading woman a stage experience which started when she was thirteen years of age.

When Miss Cunard is not playing in pictures, she is usually to be found driving her car at a fifty-mile clip along some quiet California country road. It is her main recreation—motoring—and she exhibits the same enthusiasm in following it up that is evidenced in her work on the screen.

Miss Cunard plays the leading role in the new Universal serial, "The Broken Coin," which opens at the Theatatorium in a short time.

Bilious Attacks.

When you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. They only cost a quarter. Obtainable everywhere.

Louis Collins Here.

Louis Collins is here from Memphis, Tenn., to visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Van Denberg. Louis is now sixteen years of age, and for the past ten years he has been making trips every two years to the Van Denberg home. The friendship between them started when Rev. C. M. Collins, the boy's father, was pastor of the Presbyterian church in this city. On one of these trips Louis came from New York, and made the trip by water.
